The talmy breath of peace, however salutary. dees not, cannot heal the wounds of war suddenly. But, in addition to the calamities we have named, is the terrible failure of the rewards of agriculture that was the abors of the people of the South in 1866. Whatever political feeling men may entertain of the conduct of the South in inregurating the war of the rebellion, there no ground for any difference of opin-

In the comments which I have to make on these cases, I shall speak of principles qually applicable to both, although I equally applicable to both, although I shall refer more directly to that which involves the oath required of attorneys by the act of Congress, reserving to the close some remarks more especially applicable to the oath prescribed, by the constitution of the State of Missouri.

The Constitution of the United States makes ample provision for the establishment of courts of justice, to administer its laws and to project and enforce the slaws and to protect and enforce the of that instrument says that "the jud al power of the United States shall b ested in one Supreme Court, and such aferior courts as Congress may from time time ordain and establish." Section 8, article 1, closes its enumeration of the age their causes personally, or by the assuffering to overflowing. Many of her people who yet have something to sell into the dry bones of the valley of human ity. A conspicuous part of that teaching is the enre of selfishness, and an assiduate of the creat teacher tanght that all generations would have their poor, and inculcated the relief of the poor as an acceptable obedience to lim. The witty "Father Prout," in speaking of that beautiful and magnifucent structure in Paris, the church of the Hadeleine, said that the Saviour declared s a privilege granted by the law unde to do it in such a manner, that no citizen and not an absolute right.

The distinction may be illustrated by the difference between the right of a party the difference between the right of a party to a suit in court to defend his own cause, and the right of another party to appear and defend for him. The one, like the right to life, liberty, and the parsoit of Lappiness, is inalienable; the other is the privilege conferred by law on a person who complies with the prescribed conditions. Every State in the Union, and every civilized government, has laws by which granted, and makes that right to depend apon the good moral character and professional skill of the party upon whom the privilege is conferred. This is not only true in reference to the first grant of license to practise law, but the continuance of the right is made by these laws to detect the continuance of the right is made by these laws to detect the continuance.

they are under the legislative control in the States, or in any other government, and to the same extent that the judges, clerks, marshals, and other officers of the court are subject to Congressional legislation. Having the power to establish the courts, to provide for and regulate the practice in those courts, to create their officers and to prescribe their functions, can it be doubted that Congress has the full right to prescribe terms for the admission, rejection, and expulsion of attorneys, and right to prescribe terms for the admission, rejection, and expulsion of attorneys, and for requiring of them an oath to show whether they have the proper qualifications for the discharge of their duties?

The act which has just been declared to be unconstitutional is nothing more than a statute which requires of all lawyers who propose to practise in the national courts that they shall take the same eath which is exacted of every officer of the Government, civil or military. This cath has two aspects—one which looks to the past conduct of the party, and one to his disposition to support or overture the Government in whose functions he proposes to take a part. In substance, e proposes to take a part. In substance, it is required to swear that he has not been guilty of treason to that Govern-ment in the past, and that he will bear taithful allegiance to it in the future. That fidelity to the Government under which he lives and true and level attach. preservation, are among the most essen-tial qualifications which should be reguired in a lawyer, seems to me to be too clear for doubt. The history of the Anglo-Saxon race shows that for ages past the e sentiments to spread here unchecked o permit the stream on which the life the nation depends to be poisoned at source. In illustration of this truth, I there to aftirm that if all the members ment relied on to sustain this doctrine a those which forbid Congress and the States respectively from passing bills o attainder and ex post facto laws. It is said that the act of Congress and the pravision of the Constitution of the State of Missouri under review are in conflict with both them, provisions, and are therefore.

I will examine this proposition in refer hat instrument. First, in regard to bill of attainder. I am not aware of any ju ned to be the stain or corruption of the or the common law of the pronouncing the sentence of death, and the effect of this corruption of the blood was that the party attainted lost all inheritable quality and could neither receive nor transm my property or other rights by inher ance. The attainder of corruption of England in all cases of treason to the and for aught that is known to me is the law of that country on condemnation for treason at this day. Bills of attainder, therefore, or acts of attainder, as they were called after they were passed into statutes, were laws which declared certain ersons attninted and their blood corrupt of the Constitution were directing their prohibition, for after having, in article 1, prohibited the passage of bills of attainder, in section 2 to Congress, and in section 10 to the States, there still remained to the judiciary the power of declaring attainders. Therefore, to still further ment it has provided in section three

It is no eause of wonder that the men who had just passed successfully through a desperate struggle in behalf of civil liberty should feel a detestation for legis-lation of which these were the prominent features. The framers of our political ystem had fully appreciated the necessi-y of keeping separate and distinct the printary departments of the Government. r. Nor was it less in such cases the law leaves nothing to be done to render its operation effectual but to identify those persons. Their guilt, its nature, and its punishment are fixed by the statute, and only their personal identify remains to be made out. Such was the case alluded to. The act declared the guilt and punishment of the Earl of Kilder and all who were associated with him in his enterprise, and all that was required to insure their punishment was to prove that associotion. If this were not so, then it was simply brutum fulmen.

nocence, and prononnce his own sentence It is not, then, the act of Congress, but the party interested that trues and condemns. We shall see, when we come to the discussion of this act in its relation to expost facto laws that it infliets no punish-nent. A statute which designates no Passing now to the consideration, wheth used in the Constitution, is a matter which the term is to be applied to criminal cause alone, and not to civil proceedings. In the language of Judge Stary in the case of facto laws relate to the penal and crim-nal proceedings which impose puaish ments and torfeitures, and not to civi proceedings which affect private right retrospectively." (Calder vs. Bull. 3 Dal las, 386; Fletcher vs. Peck. 6 Cranch, 87

Ogden vs. Saunders. 12 Wheaton, 266; Satterlee vs. Matthewson, 2 Peters, 380. The first case on the subject is that of Calder vs. Bull, and it is the case in which the doctrine concerning ex past facto law is most fully expounded. The court divides all laws which come within the meaning of that clause of the Constitu-tion into four classes: 1. Every law that makes an act done before the passing of the law, and which was innocent whe done, eriminal, and punishes such action. 2. Every law that aggravates a crime, or makes it greater than it was when commit-ted. 3. Every law that changes the pun-ishment, and inflicts a greater punish-ment than the law annexed to the crime or different testimony than the law rered at the time of the commission ne offence to convict the offender.

Again, the court draws in the same

nion the true distiction as between ex st facto laws and retrospective laws, d proceeds to show that, however unjust the latter may be, they are not pro-hibited by the Constitution, while the former are. This exposition of the nature of an ex post facto law has never been denied, nor has any court or any commenta-tor on the Constitution added to the classes of laws here set forth as coming within that clause of the organic law. In laws, two things strike the mind as com-mon to them all: First, that they contemplate the trial of some person charged with an offence; second, that they contemplate a punishment of a person found guilty of such offence.

that the law in question contemplates either the trial of a person for an offence committed before its passage, or the punshment of any person for such an offer It is true the act requiring an oath provides a penalty for falsely taking it; but this provision is prospective, as no one is supposed to take the oath until after the passage of the law. This prospective enalty is the only thing in the law which artakes of a criminal character. It is in all other respects a civil proceeding. It is simply an oath of office, and it is re-quired of all office-holders alike. As far as I am informed, this is the first time in the history of jurisprudence that taking an oath of office has been called a crim-nal proceeding. If it is not a criminal proceeding, then, by all the authorities, it is not an ex post facto law. No trial of any person is contemplated by the act for any past offence; nor is any party supposed to be charged with any offence in the only proceeding which the law pro-A person proposing to appear in the court as an attorney is asked to take a certain oath. There is no charge made against him that he has been guilty of any the crimes mentioned in that oath there is no prosecution. There is not even an implication of guilt by reason of ence of the Government, and legalty is written in the honorable scars which cover his body, the same as of the guiltiest trator in the land. His refusal to tion: his taking it clears him of no gailt and acquits him of no charge. Where, then, is this expost facto law which tries and punishes a man for a

came committed before it was passed? It can only be found in those clastic rules of construction which cramp the powers of the Federal Government when they are to be exercised in certain directions, and enlarge them when they are to be exercised in others. No more striking example of this could be given than the cases before us, in one of which the Constitution of the United States is held to confer no power on Congress to prevent traitors from United States is held to confer no power on Congress to prevent traitors from practising in our courts, while in the other it is held to confer power on this court to nullify a provision of the Constitution of the State of Missouri relating to a qualification required of ministers of religion. But the fatal vice in the reasoning of the majority is in the meaning which they attach to the word "punishment" in its application to this law, and in its relation to the definitions which have been given chasten;" and it is in this loose sense that the word is used by the court as synonymous with "chastisement," "correction," "loss or suffering to the party supposed to be punished," and not in the legal sense, which signifies penalty inflicted for the commission of a crime. So in this sense it is said that whereas reason the legal sense, re, by a law passed since those offenees ere committed, made liable to the enorperson guilty of the acts therein men-ioned of any right which he possessed before, for it is really sound law, as it is untarily borne arms against the Government of the United States while a citizen s for no indietment or other charge. hat it contemplates and admits of no rial, and I now proceed to show that even the right of the court to prevent an uttorucy guilty of the nets mentioned from appearing in its forum depended upon the statute, still it inflicts no panishment in the legal sense of that term.

"Punishment," says Mr Wharton in his haw Lexicon, "is a penalty for transgression of the law," and this is perhaps as counterleasive and at the same time.

as comprehensive and at the same tin as accurate a definition as can be given. Now what law is it whose transgression is punished in the case before us? None is referred to in the act, and there is nothing on its face to show that it was intended as an additional punishment for any offence described in any other act. A part of the matters of which the applicant is required to purge himself on oath may amount to trenson, and surely there could be no intention or desire to inflict this small additional punishment for a crime where proceeding to disclose his transaction under oath, would result in his punish-ment in this sense if it compelled him to coerced from him before, but this law comes clearly within the class described at once to be dangerous to the lives of perinement until their recovery is assured Here is a case of punishment, in the sense used by the court, for a matter existing before the passage of the law. It is an ex post facto law, and, if not, in what does it differ from one? Just in the same manner that the net of Congress does—resuri pro man et cadem causa, has long since been adopted into the common law as applicable both to civil and criminal proceedings, and one of the amendments of the Constitution incorporates this principle into that instrument so far as punishment affects life or limb.

It results from this rule that no man can be twice lawfully punished for the same offence. We have already seen that same offence. We have already seen that the acts of which the party is required to purge himself on onth constitute the crime of treason. Now, if the judgment of the court in the case before us, instead of permitting parties to appear without taking the oath, had been the other way, here would have been the case of a person who, would have been the case of a person who, on the reasoning of the majority, is punished by the judgment of this court for the same acts which constitute the crime of treason; and yet if the applicant here should be afterwards indicted for treason on account of those same acts, no one would pretend that the proceeding here could be successfully pleaded in bar of that indictment. But why not? Simply breause there is here neither trial nor punishment within the legal meaning of these I maintain that the purpose of the act of Congress was to require loyalty as a qualification of all who practise law in the national courts. The majority say that the purpose was to impose punishment for that no requirement can be justly said to be a qualification which is not attainable by all, and that to demand a qualification not attainable by all is a punishment. The Constitution of the United States provides as a qualification for the office of President that the person elected must be a native-born citizen. Is this a punishment to all those naturaliz citizens who can never attain that qualification? The constitution of nearly al the States requires as a qualification for voting that the voter should be a white nucle citizen. Is this a punishment for all the blacks who can never become white? It was a qualification required by years of age. To a very large number of the ablest lawyers in any State this is a qualification which they can never attain for every year removes them faither away on American law and Changeller of the State of New York was deprived of the office by this provision of the constitution of that State. He was, just in the midthe office, but he was forever disqualified from holding it again by a law passed after he had accepted the office. Here is a courts, yet no one ever thought that the Illustrations of this kind could be multiplied indefinitely, but they are unnecessary. The history of the time when this statute was passed, the darkest hour of our great struggle, the necessity for its exist uce, the humane character of the President who sixued the bill, and the face of the law itself, all show that it was purely a qualification exacted in self-defence of all who took part in administering the think I have now shown that the statute in question is within the legislative power of Concress in its control over the courts and their officers, and that it is not void as being either a bill of attainder or an e.e vost facto law. If am right on the question of qualification and bunishment that down sign direction and the ment, that discussion disposes also of the proposition that the pardon of the President relieves the party accepting it of the necessity of taking the oath, even if the law be valid. I am willing to concede that the Presidential pardon relieves the party from all the presidential pardon relieves the party. party from all penalties, or, in other words, from all the punishment which the law inflicts for his offence, but it relieves him from nothing more. If the oath required as a condition to practicing law is not a punishment, as I think I have shown not a punishment, as I think I have shown it is not, then the pardon of the President has no effect in relieving him from the requirement to take it. If it is a qualification which Congress had a right to prescribe as necessary to any attorney, then the President causet, by pardon or otherwise, dispense with the law requiring such qualification. This is not only the plain rule as between the legislative and executive departments of the Government, but tive departments of the Government, but it is the declaration of common sense. The man who, by counterfeiting, by theft, or by murder, or by treason, is reudered or by inurder, or by treason, is reudered unfit to exercise the functions of an attorney or counsellor at law, may be saved by the Executive pardon from the penitentiary or the gollows, but is not thereby restored to the qualifications which are essential to admission to the bar. No doubt it would be found that very many persons among those who cannot take this oath ing or refusing a pardon: it remain the legislative power alone to prescrib under what eircumstances this relief shal the State of Misseuri, allusions have been made in argument to the sametity of the ministerial office and to the inviolability of religious freedom in this country; but no attempt has been made to show that the Constitution of the United States in-terposes any such protection between the state governments and their own citizens The Federal Constitution contains but two provisions on this subject. One of these torbids Congress to make any law respecting the establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; the other is, that no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States. No restraint is placed in that instrument on the action of the States; but, on the contrary, in the language of Story (Commentaries on the Constitution, section 1,878), the whole power over the subion 1,878), the whole power over the sub-cet of religion is left exclusively to the state governments, to be acted npon ac-ording to their own sense of justice and the state constitution. If there ever was a case calling for this court to exercise all the power on this subject which appropriately belonged to it, it was the case of the Rev. B. Permoli, reported in 3 Howard, 589. An ordinance of the first municipality of the city of New Orleans imposed a negative on any priest who should offipanty or the city of New Orleans imposed a penalty on any priest who should offi-ciate at any funeral in any other church intended to the church of the control of the con ing npon the vague idea advanced here, at the Federal Constitution protected in in the exercise of his holy functions, the States. Mr. Permoli's writ of error was therefore dismissed for want of inris of his church over the body of his departed triend. This court said it could give him no relief in this case the constitu-tion of the State of Missouri, the finula-mental law of the people of that State adopted by their popular vote, declares that no priest of any chirch shall exercise his ministerial functions unless he will show by his own outh that he has borne provision void, on the ground that the rederal Constitution for bls it. I leave the two cases to speak for themselves. In the discussion of the cases I have said nothing, on the one hard, of the great evils indicated on the country by the voluntary action of many of those persons.

To me Frankfort appears unusually dull. Legislators are generally housed up by the snow, and the ladies of the city are prevented, by the unfavorable state of the weather, from showing themselves on the street. The Capitol Hotel is not overrunning with the beauty and fashion of the State are in usual during the street. the State as is usual during the winter se have seen many very boantiful ladies attendant upon the hotel parlors. ls of course occupying all the attention of politiciaus. It looks now as if we may expect the contest to be finally settled during the week. Your correspondent at this place, however, does and will continue to keep you posted.

THE REMOVAL OF THE CAPITAL The propriety of removing the capital scarcely pay any attention to the present ported in favor of moving the capital from here, the denizers of Frankfort largh at the idea of its removal. They do not believe it possible to get the number of votes required to locate the capital in case it is removed from here, and hence they fold their arms complacently and laugh at the exertions of delegations fr adjoining cities who are here urging the claims of their respective counties. Leb-anon, Lexington, and Danville, as well as anon, Lexington, and Panville, as well as your city, have committees of prominent eitizens urging their claims. The Lebanon delegation is composed of His Honor Judge R. A. Burton, Hon J. M. Fogle and J. P. Knott, J. M. Schorling and Capt. J. M. Fidler. A couple of Lebanon's fairest daughters, Miss Bettie Cardwell and Mrs. Capt. Fidler, are also here electioneering for their city.

It cannot be doubted that a majority perhaps two-thirds, of the Legislature are in favor of removing the capital from Frankfort. The only question is, where shall it be located. In my opinion no place stands as good a chance for it, in claims are many. Its central location, the energy and wealth of its people, the fertility of the country surrounding it, as well as its complete communication with all parts of the State, and the generated erous offers made by it, speak londly in its favor Louisville ought by all means to throw her influence in favor of Lebanon, for every dollar invested in Lebanon bu adds to the interest of Lonswille. Make Lebanon a city of twenty thousand inhabitants—and the location of the capital there would do this—and you increase its Hou. l. A. Campbell creates quite a sation here, and is disapproved by the ra ficals. The Hon. Samuel would have been complimented by a nomination for United States Senator at the hands of the radicals, had he not written this letter. The radicals believe that the Commission appointed will do ample justice to loyal Kentnekians, and they further hold that such Kentuckians as are loyal ought to have pay for their slaves. They do not hold that such payment is necessary to sustain their party, but that it is a matter of JUSTICE.

A TRADE LEAGUE OF OUR RIVER CITIES State constitutions and laws nor is there We invite the attention of our business men to the following article from the New Orleans Commercial Bulletin of the 15th We do not mean anything political or ectional. We have noidea of a Hanseatic association or a Zollverein. We mean to recommend a legitimate conference among the river civies by which they can combine certain facilities of exportation and inter-communication that must operate for the advantage of each. The isolation of sepa-rate interests, the rivalry of an imaginary competition, should be obtaited. The river cities should harmonize and combine upon on the one, or to Pittsbarg on the other, which is not deeply interested in restoring the traile of the Mississippi or Union view. mun eation with the world-market, but the ductive and expanding regions above us is far from enjoying such means of and it is the mutual interest of all to encourage and develop that commerce by

To comprehend these great interests and to organize the means of promoting them will require a conference between all the cities of the Mississippi and Ohio. They should send deputations from the Chambers of Commerce and Councils of each, to devise the means of attaining a common object. But these consultations should object. But these consultations should by no means be confined to navigation. It should comprehend every facility of rail, express, and telegraph, both overland and oceanie.

Without expatiating upon that which every merchant so well comprehends, we may ennmerate the points upon which a conference should be held. The removal at Federal expense of all obstacles to river navigation, including

Hon. h. Mawes, Judge of the Bourbon
County Court, has just rendered a decision, which is of nunsual importance, and, which, it sustained by the higher courts, as we denbt not it will be when indicially tested, ill effectually destroy the power of the Freeduen's Eureau thronghout the State.

The decision was rendered in the case of a colored woman. Harriet Hurley, who came by her attorney, J. Lawrence Jones, before the court, paying a writ of Habeas Corpus against Dudley Cummins, who, under color of an indenture of apprentice-ship by the Burean, was, as she alleged, restraining of their liberty two minors applicable to this State, but were clearly which were clearly intended to apply to those States only which were in rebellion and where the ordinary process of the law was suspended by armed force. Kentucky had not been in rebellion, but was, through the whole period of the war, a loyal State, and as such was represented in the Congress of the the law suspended. Hence the court could not regard the provisions of the Bureau law as applicable to this State, and declared all contracts of apprenticeship by agents in Kentucky to be null and roid. I he children, in conformity with the above views, were ordered to be remanded to THE ELEPHANT AS A WALKER.—We have generally found two curious points over-ooked or ignored by writers—one is the rapid and noiseless movements of this ani-mal in the thickest cover; the other, his capabilities of passing over ground for him apparently unfeasible. The elastic, obseless footian of the reputation of the requently referred to by writers on Indian ubjects, and has been rightly assorted to be the most agreeable feature in journeying on elephant back. This peculiarity was the results are all as a commission of the results are a commission of the results are all as a commission of the results are all a commissions are all as a co tion of the structure of the animal's foot; but the silent, stealthy way in which he will pass through the densest thicket, literally "slipping away," when his acute sense of smell or hearing warn him of danger, has been generally overlooked, and appears to us somewhat difficult of explanation. Let any one unskilled in the mysteries of "bushranging" attempt to move even a few paces in an ordinary fox covert without noise, and he will form some idea of the difficulties presented to a passage of so huge an animal as the elephant through the dense tangled undergrowth of a South African "bush." Yet that the animal, despite his enormons bulk, will "draw off," when within a few yards of his pursuer, without the slightest noise, and with the greatest rapidity, even in the thickest cover, is undeniable. Again, his powers of passing over difficult ground are often underrated even by hunters. When experiments were first made in India in training elephants to draw the gun, it was aining elephants to draw the gun, it was ground were far greater than had been anticipated. The gun, a light six-pounder, with which the trial was first made, was drawn up a slope so steep as to require the animal to crawl upon its fore knees, which it did without hesitation. On the oth-er hand, hampered by the gun and harness, the elephant (a small female) showed unusual dread of soft and swampy ground.

The crowds of juveniles that have been eagerly looking for the Fairy Queen and attendants, will be glad to know that she has arrived, and will positively be at Masonic Temple to-night to receive her friends. Those of a larger growth, who have had their curiosity excited by hearing of the remarkable improvisations of the ready Harrison, the wonderful music of the blind violinist, Prof. Brooke, and the precocious musical genius of the boy Zack, will all be auxious to see and hear for themselves! We are satisfied that the combination will prove all, or even more, than has been claimed for it. We do not believe that the press throughout the country would speak in unmodified praise of this enterinment, unless there was good ground or that commendation. The first matiee will be given on Tuesday afternoon, and exhibitions every afternoon and evening for the remainder of the week.

LEGISLATIVE MATTERS.-The following ills, beneficial to the city of Louisville, Warden, ran to their relief barely in time were passed by the General Assembly duing the session yesterday. IN THE SENATE.

In any Northern city such a snow would not have detained a street railway for half a day; but here it seems to furnish a capital opportunity for mismanagement and injustice

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.-The performance of "Married Life" at this place of amusement last evening was one of the happiest efforts of the company. But a small assembly witnessed the representation, yet there wasn't a man, woman, or child present that didn't enjoy and appreciate the superb delineation of each and every character. Our play-goers committed a great mistake in not turning out to see the fine old comedy. The worthy beneficiary, Mrs. Cantor, should have been meeting this evening at the Mayor's of patronized more liberally. To-night, the management will bring out

Stevens's reconstruction bill, and was ressed by Mr. Kerr in opposition and Higby in support of the bill. The House then took a recess until EVENING SESSION.—Mr. Trumbull spoke against the reconstruction bill as a bill of attainder and ex post facto law.

Mr. Dodge approved the bill. He differed entirely from the general sentiment on the Republican side of the house, thinking himself that Congress had already committed itself against the view that the Stutes recently in rebellion were not States in the Union. He had ailed to find in either Mr Stevens's or Ashley's bill the first thing that prom ilso deprecated the impeachment bill. He declared himself opposed to giving any substantial cause for his resolution and resistance. His opinion was there never had been a State out of the Union, and that none but States could govern or be governed by the Congress o the United States. The power was pri-mary and full to admit States into the Union, but there was no power conferred upon Congress or reserved by States to expel or to take a State out. The details the bill showed that it contemplated the establishment of a despotism in the South, a despotism in a country where nothing but a free representative Govern ment had ever existed or could ever exist He contended that not for a mourent was the representative rights of the South States ever destroyed. House adjourned.

FRANKFORT, Jan. 17, 1867.

Messrs. Wright and Young
GENTLEMEN—I appreciate the great importance of Kentucky being fully represented in the Senate of the United States during the whole of the session, to commence the 4th of March. To effect this, my successor must be chosen at the present session of the Legislature. Balloting to make an election has taken place fruitessly for several days. The continuance of my name before the Legislature for re-election cannot, I feel assured, aid it in making choice of a Senator, and might operate still further to postpone it. Therefore, with a view to the early consummation of this important business, and to prevent unnecessary waste of valuable and his sureties. Passed. Samc-A bill for the benefit of Wm.
